Charred Hulk Of Moonship Probed After Flames Kill Three Astronauts

Program Suffers Heavily From Tragedy

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — America's moon program has suffered heavily, not only by the personal tragedy of losing three astronauts, but also by stalling perhaps for months the effort to land men on the moon by 1970.

However, officials say it is too early to tell whether the national goal of trying a moon trip by the end of the decade is in jeopardy after Friday's grim catastrophe on a Cape Kennedy, Fla., launch pad.

"If they are able to quickly determine what happened, the program will go on," said Rep. Olin Teague, D-Tex., a high ranking member of the House Aeronautics Committee. "If not, it will have to wait until we find out."

Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom Jr., Lt. Col. Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Comdr. Roger B. Chaffee died during a simulated flight of their Apollo spaceship when a flash fire engulfed the vehicle.

Several major factors are involved in determining how long the National Aeronautics and Space Administration now must wait before launching its first manned Apollo flight, the mission of up to two weeks. Grissom, White and Chaffee were to begin Feb. 21.

First, an investigating board must determine exactly what caused the flash fire, whether it was something only peculiar to this one spaceship or whether it was a problem that might force a redesign of the Apollo vehicle's systems.

Then, there is the matter of equipment — whether the spaceship involved in the fire must be completely discarded and a new one used in its place.

Apparently the vehicle was charred inside and out. Paul Haney, voice of the astronauts, said it was "heavily damaged."

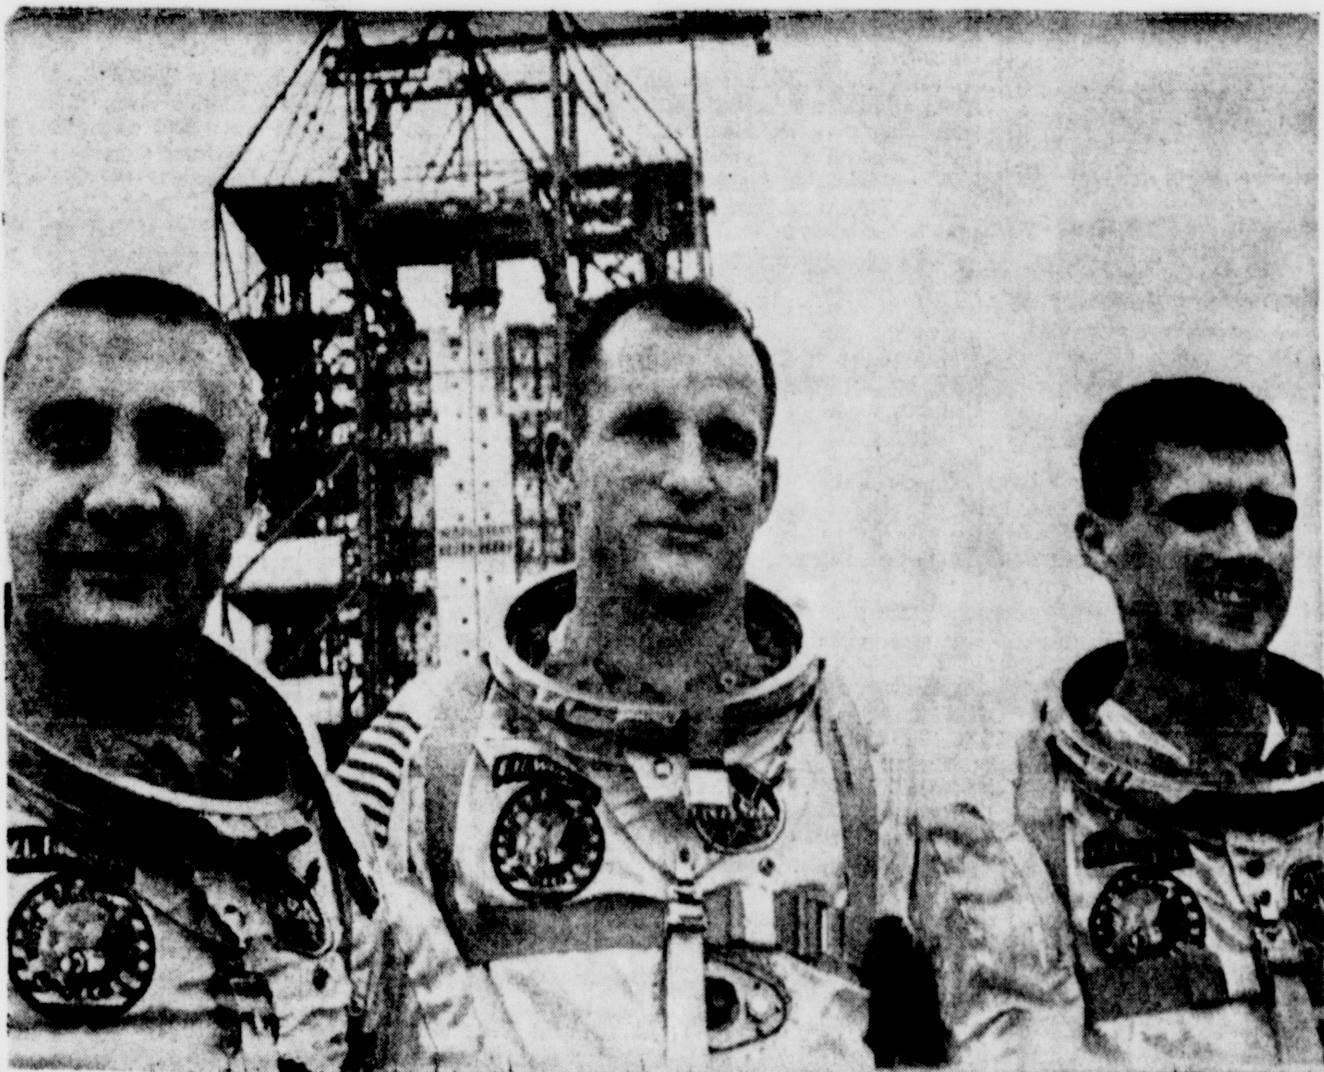

NASA has other spaceships. The delays would result, though, from weeks of testing required before a vehicle is taken to a launch pad.

New Astronauts must be trained. However, the backup crewmen who now will take over the prime slots have had the benefit of months of training. They are Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele and civilian Walter Cunningham.

Schirra, Eisele and Cunningham originally were slated to fly the second Apollo mission, but a shakeup in scheduling caused by other problems forced their flight to be canceled. They then became backups to the first crew.

NASA could possibly play "musical chairs" so to speak by moving the spacecraft tabbed for the second mission to the first. However, it is of a different design, more nearly like the one that some day will fly men to the moon. This probably would bring on a reshuffling of the flight plan and additional training to acquaint the crew with the new design.

The Schirra crew's original spaceship is on the shelf and (Turn to PROGRAM, Page 2)

B52's Batter At Sanctuary Of Viet Cong

Fire Bombs Rained On Jungle Base In Cambodia Region

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Giant U.S. B52 bombers rained fire bombs on War Zone C today in an attempt to burn out the longtime jungle sanctuary of the Viet Cong near the Cambodian frontier.

It was the second incendiary raid this month by the high-flying Stratofortresses.

A U.S. military spokesman, who announced the raid, said the results were not yet known. In the Mekong Delta, U.S. Army gunship helicopters used searchlights to track down Viet Cong guerrillas drifting about in sampans during the night.

Helicopter pilots reported destroying 33 sampans and killing 44 Viet Cong Friday night and this morning while flying "firefly missions" 28 miles southwest of Saigon.

On these missions, one helicopter beams its searchlights on the enemy while two flanking gunship helicopters open up with automatic weapons.

In air action over North Vietnam Friday U.S. pilots flew 85 bombing missions. They concentrated all their strikes in the lower part of the country as poor weather covered the northern portions.

During the raids, an Air Force F4C Phantom jet was shot down by Communist ground fire, U.S. headquarters said.

The two-man crew nursed the crippled craft out to sea in the Gulf of Tonkin, bailed out and were rescued by a U.S. Marine helicopter within about 15 minutes of landing in the water.

A U.S. spokesman said one of the fliers turned on his radio while in his rubber dinghy and listened to the arrangements for his rescue.

Auto Injuries Claim Beaver Falls Man, 63

Wilbert H. Rider, 63, of Beaver Falls, struck by an auto while crossing a street near his home last Saturday, died this morning at 12:45 at Beaver Falls Unit of Providence Hospital.

The death was the second traffic fatality in Beaver County for 1967.

Jobs For All!

That's Pledge In Hiring Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Chamber of Commerce told the nation's 2.7 million unemployed today that "we can get anybody a job."

Jack Woolridge, editor of Nation's Business, said jobs had been found so far for about half a dozen persons, including one 48-year-old accountant who had been looking for work four months.

"Nation's Business, with the support of the nation's private employment agencies, throws out the challenge: we can get anybody a job who is willing and able to work," said the magazine, which is mailed primarily to businessmen and not sold to the general public.

WOOLDRIDGE CONCEDED "we may be sticking our neck out" with the offer, but John E. Harmon, executive vice president of the National Employment Association, said: "We're not taking this pledge lightly." The only strings attached, the Chamber's publication said, are that an applicant must be willing "to take some training, move to another location and settle for a job reasonably consistent with his qualifications," if necessary.

Harmon's association represents 1,500 of the nation's approximately 5,000 private employment agencies, which he said find permanent or temporary jobs for about 11 million workers a year.

The U.S. Employment Service, operated by the federal government in cooperation with the states, found jobs for about 10 million persons last year.

APPLICANTS TO the Chamber of Commerce job placement program will be referred to private employment agencies, which charge a fee. Harmon said the fee generally can be paid over a period of time and presents no great obstacle.

The U.S. Employment Service charges no fee. It is also the federal agency that distributes unemployment insurance checks, and Harmon said part of the problem is that some people would rather draw jobless checks or welfare payments than work.

Many people have trouble finding a job because they don't know how to go about it, or how to conduct themselves in a job interview, Harmon said. Some are too choosy about the kind of work they're willing to do — "They won't take this, they won't take that," Harmon said.

"The point we are trying to make is that there is plenty of work in America today," he said.

At Embassy Conference

Red Chinese Fire Charge At Russians In Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — The Chinese Embassy in Moscow called an unprecedented news conference today to accuse Soviet police of a "blood repression" against Chinese students who visited Red Square Wednesday.

U.S. and Soviet newsmen were barred from the conference and had to pick up their material from those invited. The Chinese charged earlier that Soviet police prevented 69 Chinese students from placing a wreath on the grave of Joseph V. Stalin and roughed them up in a bloody scuffle. They said 10 of the students were "seriously beaten."

The Soviets called the Chinese assertions "unpardonable lies." They said the Chinese created today to accuse Soviet police of the disturbance by shouting anti-Soviet slogans and starting fights.

The two countries exchanged protests over the incident. Mao Tsyun, identified as the press attaché of the Chinese Embassy, told the news conference that the Red Square scuffle was "one more example of collusion between the Soviet revisionist ruling clique and the U.S. leaders."

Baker's Case Due To Reach Jurors Today

Long Prison Term, Big Fine Possible Under Nine Counts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bobby Baker case is slated to go to the jury today. If convicted on all nine counts, the former secretary to Senate Democrats could be sentenced to 48 years in prison and fined $47,000.

U.S. Dist. Judge Oliver Gasch began at mid-morning delivering his voluminous instructions to the six-man, six-woman jury. It appeared virtually certain the panel would begin its deliberations before nightfall.

Baker, 38, is charged with larceny, tax evasion, conspiracy and other offenses, but the central accusation in the three-week trial has been that he stole most or all of $100,000 in "senatorial campaign contributions" made by California savings and loan executives.

In closing arguments Friday, defense attorney Edward Bennett Williams said these "flint-eyed, marble-hearted tycoons" knew what they were doing.

He said they collected the money, which was mostly in $100 bills, after the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma "gave up on" a proposal he had previously backed. The proposed legislation would have meant millions of dollars of new taxation on stock savings and loan associations.

"You'd have a better chance," he said, "of getting out of the Louvre Museum with the Venus de Milo under your arm, than you would have getting $100,000 from those tycoons less they knew where it was going and why, whether it got there and when."

He asked the jury: "Have you ever heard of a larceny case in which the victims made no complaint?"

In his final argument, Prosecutor William O. Bittman accused the defense of maligning a dead man of blameless reputation.

He told the jury to make no mistake, that what the defense was implying was that Kerr took "a $100,000 bribe to fix legislation."

"Whatever wrongs Robert G. Baker committed in his entire life," Bittman said, "they are small compared to what he has attempted to do to his deceased friend, Sen. Kerr."

Board Selected For Study Of Deaths

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Investigators poked today through the charred hulk of the Apollo 1 moonship, seeking the cause of a searing flash fire that turned it into a death trap for three of the nation's spacemen.

A team led by Maj. Gen. Samuel Phillips, Apollo program director, began a preliminary search for clues to the disaster that stalled perhaps for months the U.S. drive for a landing on the moon.

A formal board of inquiry was to convene later, headed by Dr. Floyd Thompson, director of NASA's Langley Research Center.

One and one-half miles from Pad 34, site of Friday night's first great spacecraft tragedy, the bodies of astronauts Virgil I. Grissom, Edward H. White II and Roger B. Chaffee lay in an infirmary.

They were practicing for a two-week space mission, the first of the Apollo flights which will culminate in the lunar landing, when the hot blaze snuffed out their lives in an instant.

Grimly, space officials said they would push on with the program, but the holocaust which capped a long series of troubles with the Apollo spacecraft will call for a soul-searching look before other lives are risked.

And Rep. Charles A. Mosher of Ohio, second-ranking Republican member of the House Science and Astronautics Committee, said it was "inevitable" that safety procedures will be reviewed in Washington.

Apollo, first scheduled to blast off before the end of last year, has been plagued by malfunctions. During the final checkout and testing of Apollo 1, many changes and modifications were made. Not a word came from the astronauts when the fire flash ripped into the explosive pure oxygen atmosphere of the spacecraft. Death, said space officials, was instantaneous.

Two victims of the holocaust, Pad 34 were space veterans, the other a rookie.

The 40-year-old Grissom flew in Mercury and Gemini programs, helping blaze the first American trails in space. White, 36, was the first U.S. astronaut to leave his ship and become a human satellite. Chaffee, 31, was training for his launch.

SOME DAY, every spaceman knew in his heart, it was bound to happen. It was too much to hope that the perilous route to the moon could be traveled without loss of life.

But when it came, they thought, it would be in the far reaches of space, not this way.

Going through a full-scale simulation of the launch that was to carry them aloft Feb. 21 for a two-week ride, Grissom, White and Chaffee were trapped in the spacecraft when it was swept by the flash fire.

No word came over the monitors, said Paul Haney, voice of the astronauts. Apparently, all three died instantly from heat or asphyxiation.

Vows Are Made By Mao's Forces

TOKYO (AP) — Peking radio reported today that Mao Tse-tung's followers in rebellious Sinkiang Province, where 100 persons were reported killed in recent clashes, have vowed to seize the government from appointees of President Liu Shao-chi.

The Mao-controlled radio also said Red Chinese army troops in full battle dress paraded through the streets of six cities Friday to demonstrate their loyalty to Mao.

The displays of military might were staged in Taiyuan, capital of Shanxi Province, recently captured by Maoists, as well as Shanghai, Peking, Fukien, Paoting and Lanchow in the northwest.

Peking wall posters, Japanese correspondents reported, said seven of the eight Sinkiang army divisions — about 140,000 of the 160,000 men — were loyal to Gen. Wang En-mao, the pro-Liu commander of the Sinkiang Military District.

The situation in the province, scene of 1960 border incidents with the Soviet Union and site of China's five atomic explosions, was said to be tense.

Peking radio said Sinkiang pro-Mao "rebel" headquarters and members of the government and administration declared they would begin an all-out struggle to seize the leadership of the vast but thinly populated northwest region.

Sinkiang's population of 5.6 million is 75 per cent Uigur, said Peking wall posters, Japanese correspondents reported.

Storm Deaths Rise

Roving Looters Hit Snow Areas

By The Associated Press

Looters roamed Chicago's streets today and all police leaves were canceled as Illinois, Indiana and Michigan struggled free of a suffocating blanket of snow.

The record storm left at least 37 dead in Illinois — 28 in Chicago — as well as 10 in Michigan, 5 in Wisconsin and 3 in Indiana.

The storm slipped across the border into Canada, spraying rain and snow on Toronto and pelting the Laurentians of Quebec with what was expected to be a foot of snow. But its main force had been spent.

The Weather Bureau reckoned the blizzard "one of the biggest snowstorms of the century." The 23 inches dumped on Chicago in 29 hours and 8 minutes surpassed the 19.2-inch record for a single storm set March 25-26, 1930.

The worst single snowfall was in Kalamazoo, Mich.—28 inches. The snow blanket, averaging two feet in depth, stretched in a hundred-mile-wide band from northeast Missouri to Lower Michigan.

Chicago was hardest hit. Civic leaders estimated the storm would cost the city $35 million in lost business.

Temperatures tumbled toward zero in Chicago as police chased looters from the streets. The bone-numbing cold made it harder to get the snow off the streets so residents could get back to their cars, their jobs, their schools and their families.

A 10-year-old girl was shot to death by a stray bullet.

Forward Holds Ripped

Freighter Fights For Life After Chesapeake Crash

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The American freighter Beaver State, her forward holds ripped and flooded from a fog-blind collision Friday, fought for her life today amid growing winds and rising seas in Chesapeake Bay.

While her crewmen battled to save the stricken vessel, the wreck's other victim, the Liberian ore carrier Borodora, remained hard aground nearby, some 60 miles north of Norfolk, off Smith Point Light Station.

One-third of her forward section was awash and her crew of 34 had been removed. Capt. Tomas R. Cuto, First Mate Jose Losada and First Engineer Maximo Alvarez, plus the helmsman and lookout on duty at the time of the crash, remained on a Coast Guard patrol vessel nearby.

The 27 other crewmen were taken by cutter to Piney Point, Md., and then to Washington National Airport where they were scheduled to depart by plane today for Madrid.

Aboard the Beaver State all 39 men remained, battling to remove 28 feet of water from the No. 2 hold and shore up the bulkheads. No. 1 hold is open to the sea, and the weight of water in the two holds had raised the stern — and the propeller — out of the water.

The Coast Guard buoy tender Conifer placed buoys in the area of the Beaver State, about 2.7 miles from the Smith Point light, near the mouth of the Potomac River, to warn shipping in the area.

The tender also put a five-man work crew aboard with extra pumps to aid in the water removal.

11 Injured In 3 Mishaps

Eleven were injured in three district highway accidents today and Friday, the Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon reported.

Cars operated by Ronald J. Beadnell, 18, of Hanoverton and Thomas W. Jenkins, 21, of Beloit R. D. 2 collided on Route 30 about two miles west of Hanoverton at 1:50 a.m. today.

Jenkins was headed west and his car skidded left of center and hit the oncoming convertible of Beadnell.

The drivers were injured along with Grover Kirsch, 17, of Hanoverton R.D. 1, a passenger with Beadnell and Carol Geiger, 19, of Damascus and George Russell, 24, of Sebring, passengers with Jenkins.

Jenkins was cited for driving left of center.

Mrs. Ruth Libertin, 40, of Steubenville and four youngsters in her car were injured when it went over an embankment along Route 7 about 2½ miles south of Rogers yesterday afternoon at 4:40.

Officers said she was headed south and slowed for traffic when she lost control and the car went off the east side, back over to the west side and down the embankment, overturning in a creek.

In the car were Andrew Libertin, 8; Claudia Libertin, 12; Mary Libertin, 15, and Monica Libertin, 17.

Lloyd Thomas Johnson, 24, of Hanoverton was cited for drunken driving after his car went off the road with five children in it last night near Lisbon.

Officers said he was headed west when the 1959 sedan went off the roadway. John Johnson, 1, was injured.

death in a West Side storm during an exchange of gunfire between police and about 50 looters. A security guard was shot in the wrist and wounded during another looting episode in the same neighborhood, an area of West Roosevelt Road plagued last summer by three nights of Negro rioting and looting finally quelled by National Guardsmen.

Hundreds of cars were buried in snowdrifts. Families walked through four-lane arteries usually clogged with motor traffic, greeting neighbors with not a car in sight.

One newspaperman skied to work in the pancake-flat city. It took him two hours. He said he spent three hours and 15 minutes riding a bus back home.

Virtually every city and suburban school closed, as did courts, financial exchanges and most businesses. Officials said O'Hare International Airport, closed for an unprecedented 36 hours, probably wouldn't reopen until 5 p.m. today.

Trains ran as much as 16 hours behind schedule.

Thousands of persons were stranded — in their cars, in service stations and in schools. Stores, short of supplies, rationed milk and bread to customers.

More than 5,000 workers were snowed in at two steel mills in Gary and Burns Harbor, Ind. The New York Central Railroad dispatched an emergency train to plow its way from Cleveland to Indiana, bearing food and snow removal equipment for the stranded workers.

A Gary physician, Dr. Danny Thomas, spent two days listening to his radio and delivering babies. His two-way car radio sent him on eight missions of mercy in 20 hours, delivering babies in the homes of snow-bound mothers.

In South Bend, two children were apparently suffocated when a snow-covered awning fell on them as they played.

In Michigan, 26 Greyhound bus passengers rode a snowplow to safety after being stranded in their bus overnight 10 miles west of Lansing.

Gov. George Romney made it to work — with the help of an armored personnel carrier which the National Guard used to plow the way.

Roofs collapsed in Lansing and St. Joseph.

Hopkins International Airport, Cleveland, was jammed with more than 2,000 stranded travelers. It wasn't because of the weather in Cleveland — they were trying to get into snow-bound O'Hare and other closed airports.

New Snowfall Adds To Woes Over State
By The Associated Press

Snow fell throughout much of Ohio during the night adding to already hazardous conditions, particularly in the northwestern part of the state which was struck by an early ice storm.

Temperatures skidded and some highways were frozen over.

The ice storm, part of that which knocked out Chicago, hit Van Wert, Paulding and other smaller northwestern Ohio towns, and some residents still were without power and telephone service this morning.

The storm struck Thursday night and Friday. Some utilities had been restored by Friday night.

The Highway Patrol post at Van Wert said, however, there were no "real emergencies," and no deaths had been reported as a result of the storm.

Ice built up on wires, causing them to break and knocking out power and phone service in a wide area. Hospitals functioned with emergency generators. The Van Wert patrol post itself was without power about four hours Friday.

Schools in the area were closed Friday, and residents caught without heat went to friends' or made other arrangements.

The storm left a lot of debris, the patrol said. Tree limbs and utility poles were down all over the area.

Toledo, largest city in northwestern Ohio, did not get heavy ice, but the Toledo Airport closed Friday because of weather. Trains there ran three hours late.

Police List Mishaps Here

Three auto collisions occurring within the space of a half-hour Friday afternoon were investigated by city police.

At 4:08 p.m., autos driven by Chris Ben Allen, 17, of Fairview Rd., Chester, and Arthur E. Bochart, 39, of Columbiana, were involved in a crash at W. 3rd St. at the intersection of Peach Alley.

Bochart told police he was unable to avoid hitting the Allen auto when Allen pulled into the traffic lane.

Allen's 1964 two-door hardtop received heavy damage to the left side and Bochart's 1966 two-door hardtop damage to the left front fender, bumper and headlights.

Allen was cited for failure to grant the right of way.

At 4:14 p.m., a 1962 sedan driven by Claude O. Allison of 444 Florida Ave., Chester, struck a 1961 convertible being driven from a parked position by Patricia D. Cunningham, 23, of 1948 Dresden Ave.

It occurred on Broadway south of E. 5th St.

The left front door of the Cunningham auto was damaged, as was the right front bumper of the Allison auto.

Another accident was reported on Broadway north of E. 3rd St. shortly after 4:30.

It involved a parked 1964 sedan owned by William C. Conley of 170 Pennsylvania Ave., Chester, which was struck by a 1958 station wagon driven by Frank C. Christy of Irish Ridge Rd.

Conley's auto received damage to the front bumper and headlight rim.

W. F. Copestick was the investigating officer.

Leetonia Man Among Three Given Terms

Prison sentences have been handed out to three Ohio men convicted in the mass assault of a teen-age girl last August in Leetsdale, Pa., near Pittsburgh.

Sentenced Friday in Allegheny County Criminal Court to county workhouse terms were John Hrusovski, 25, and John J. Smith, 19, both of Youngstown, and Ralph A. Sposetta Jr., 28, of Leetonia, all said to be members of a motorcycle gang.

Hrusovski and Sposetta received consecutive sentences of one and one-half to three years on morals charges and three to six months on assault and battery charges.

Smith was given three to six months on an assault and battery charge and three to six months on a morals charge to run consecutively.

A fourth man, John Jones, 27, of Sebring, appealed his conviction on three morals charges and one assault charge. Arguments on his appeal are expected to be heard next month.

Six other men earlier received prison terms in the attack against the 18-year-old girl from Beaver Falls.

Police List Mishaps Here

Three auto collisions occurring within the space of a half-hour Friday afternoon were investigated by city police.

At 4:08 p.m., autos driven by Chris Ben Allen, 17, of Fairview Rd., Chester, and Arthur E. Bochart, 39, of Columbiana, were involved in a crash at W. 3rd St. at the intersection of Peach Alley.

Bochart told police he was unable to avoid hitting the Allen auto when Allen pulled into the traffic lane.

Allen's 1964 two-door hardtop received heavy damage to the left side and Bochart's 1966 two-door hardtop damage to the left front fender, bumper and headlights.

Allen was cited for failure to grant the right of way.

At 4:14 p.m., a 1962 sedan driven by Claude O. Allison of 444 Florida Ave., Chester, struck a 1961 convertible being driven from a parked position by Patricia D. Cunningham, 23, of 1948 Dresden Ave.

It occurred on Broadway south of E. 5th St.

The left front door of the Cunningham auto was damaged, as was the right front bumper of the Allison auto.

Another accident was reported on Broadway north of E. 3rd St. shortly after 4:30.

It involved a parked 1964 sedan owned by William C. Conley of 170 Pennsylvania Ave., Chester, which was struck by a 1958 station wagon driven by Frank C. Christy of Irish Ridge Rd.

Conley's auto received damage to the front bumper and headlight rim.

W. F. Copestick was the investigating officer.

Rash Of Accidents Tied To Snow-Slicked Streets

The heavy snowfall which started Friday night was blamed for a rash of traffic mishaps shortly before and after midnight, police reported.

At 12:27 a.m. today, a 1964 station wagon driven by Robert Bruce Green, 16, of R.D. 2, Maple Dr., Calcutta, was struck on Dresden Ave. north of Moore St. by a passing vehicle which slid into a guard-rail and bounced.

The driver of the second car was not immediately identified. Green's vehicle received damage to the left rear door, fender and bumper.

At 12:55 a.m., an auto driven by Fred Hilditch of So. Surry Rd. slid into the rear of a parked 1961 sedan owned by Guy J. Looman, 47, of 309 Carolina Ave., East Liverpool.

The mishap occurred on the E. 5th St. hill, police said. No injuries were reported in any of the accidents.

Extensive damage resulted to the front of both the Klaas and Carroll autos.

Another collision happened shortly after midnight at the same location.

It involved autos driven by Ross Kent Bell, 17, of 237 Highland Ave., Wellsville, and Donald Lee Bennett, 20, of Box 343, Wellsville.

Police said Bell had stopped his 1962 northbound sedan to avoid striking a woman who had slipped and fallen and that the auto was struck from behind by Bennett's 1961 sedan.

Both cars were damaged. Bennett was cited by P. C. Blevins, investigating officer, for

2 Men Hurt In Morning Skid Mishap

Two city men were injured when their small car was struck from behind by another auto on the Smiths Ferry - Calcutta Rd. hill leading to Route 68 this morning.

Norman Delaney of Williams Ave. and Kenneth Ensinger of 604 Northside Ave. were treated at City Hospital for possible neck injuries suffered when Ensinger's car was hit about 6:20 a.m.

Ohioville police investigated the mishap, but details were not available late this morning.

Witnesses said a southbound van-type truck had halted for a car in a ditch about 1,500 feet north of the Midland - East Liverpool Rd. and Ensinger stopped behind it.

Ensinger, Delaney and William MacAllister of LaCroft were en route to work at the Crucible Steel Co.

Another auto behind Ensinger attempted to halt and slid into the ditch beside his car, but another auto operated by a Pleasant Heights driver skidded into the back of Ensinger's car.

Leo LeFebvre and Jim Dunlap, part-time Ohioville police officers, investigated.

WEEKLY HEALTH tip

In case of a chemical burn of the eye, 60 to 90 seconds may be the difference between blindness and sight. It is important to dilute the chemical with water as quickly as possible by gently flushing the eye with water, while immersed in a bucketful, or slowly from a faucet or pitcher — holding the lids open if necessary. The slight discomfort can mean the saving of eyesight. Follow with prompt medical care.

A Chance To Ask Questions

One of the key steps in community development is a zoning ordinance to provide for the orderly growth and rearrangement of a city over a period of years.

Such a measure, prepared by a citizens' committee and the East Liverpool Planning Commission, will be discussed at a public hearing Monday.

This measure, to be considered by Council for final adoption some time this year, is not restrictive nor in any way would it effect the status of existing homes, businesses or industries.

Had East Liverpool had a zoning ordinance earlier in this century, there would have been fewer cases of homes being erected adjacent to noisy industries, of junk yards permitted in residential areas, of investments in programs or structures which have become less efficient than originally planned because of incompatible neighborhood changes.

Zoning is only a tool of planning for community development, but it is an important tool, along with building codes, subdivision regulations, highway and street controls, and others.

In some areas and in previous years, zoning has had a few unfavorable images with the public, due to misunderstanding and misconceptions.

We suggest that residents interested in what zoning is and how the proposed ordinance will apply in East Liverpool attend the hearing.

There should be no feeling or criticism that the planning commission or Council are trying to "railroad" something through in legislation. This is not the case.

The planners and the legislators are sincere in their hopes that the public will welcome the opportunity to hear about the ordinance and ask questions.

Certainly, those looking toward the future of a better East Liverpool should welcome a workable zoning ordinance and the other methods of making that future a reality.

All The Way?

The bill approved by the West Virginia House to let private clubs be licensed to sell liquor by the drink to members and guests makes sense, in our opinion.

What would make even more sense would be legislation approving the sale of liquor by the drink statewide.

If liquor is going to be sold — and it is — why not legalize it all the way?

West Virginia would benefit revenue-wise and the possibility of graft erased.

Hands Off The Untouchable!

Congress now is supposed to be furrowing its legislative brow over the presidential budget with a view to analyzing its contents.

Hopefully, congressional analysis will show where the budget can be trimmed.

But let no one feel hopeful in 1967.

Actually, U.S. taxpayers will be lucky if the budget isn't expanded by the brow-furrowers.

This is because of a monstrous joke that has been played on the legislative department by the executive department — a joke that someday could be the undoing of the United States.

The presidential budget now ropes off defensive expenditures as a sacred precinct and forbids Congress to exercise its constitutional authority in that entire sector of public expenditures.

Legislators are told they are incompetent to discuss anything labeled "national defense" — that all spending in this category is sacrosanct.

THE MONSTROUSNESS of the joke this represents in representative democracy is the fact national defense will account for more than three-fourths of all federal spending in 1968 and upward of two-thirds of federal spending this year.

As far as the rest of the Government's spending is concerned, anything Congress might trim, even if it had cut 10 per cent across the board would be peanuts.

This is, of course, the last thing Congress wants to do, because it is precisely in the small fraction of non-defense spending that representatives and senators must look for political favor. It is the only place where representative government still operates.

National defense, once a controllable budget item, now is a large tail wagging a small dog — and whoever dares to ask questions about this is in dire danger of being accused of taking bullets out of the guns of U.S. fighting men in Viet Nam or giving aid and comfort to the Kremlin.

BEFORE HE LEFT office at the end of his second term in the presidency, Dwight D. Eisenhower warned his countrymen about the very thing that has happened.

He said the "conjunction of an immense military establishment and a large arms industry was new in the American experience."

He said the United States should "guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence . . . by the military-industrial complex."

He beseeched the American people to comprehend the grave implications of "misplaced power" that existed in this growing menace to their constitutional privilege of representative democracy.

Freedom of choice has been taken away from Congress in the disposal of more billions of dollars in a single year than their government spent for all purposes in the entire decade of the '30s.

By making national defense expenditures untouchable — by blanketing the fantastic wastefulness of military profligacy under a veil that must not be pulled aside, except at the risk of being dubbed an enemy of the Pentagon — the executive department has made a mockery of legislative debate and decision.

Congress can decide anything it wants to decide about the rest of the budget. But the rest of the budget leaves little or nothing to decide about, except to wish wistfully for more money to spend on the things that people back home would like to have.

The Bounds Are Almost Limitless

The spectacular growth of cable television—or CATV—from fledgling experiments in the early '50's to 1,700-plus systems in the '60's qualifies as a true revolution in the communications industry.

People want better TV reception, and a greater choice of programming, and they evidently are willing to pay for it.

Like any other successful enterprise in a free economy, cable TV grew in response to demand, and the speed of its growth is a measure of the persistence of the demand.

The attraction of turning to 5, 10 or even 12 or more channels of entertainment and education for a small monthly charge appealed to television viewers and skyrocketed the industry to prominence, especially in areas that had been getting little and/or poor reception.

Cable TV has its problems, though. Just as theater interests and radio broadcasters feared television in its early days, so some television broadcasters and manufacturers of roof-top antennas have opposed the cable industry.

No one can prevent the success of an industry that arises in response to strong public demand.

The growth pattern seems destined to reach almost limitless bounds. Where it will lead and the opportunities it will provide for communication in the years ahead can be calculated only in the mind of a visionary engineer.

Cotton Corners

By Truman Twill

Dear Nephew: I am slowly recovering from an attack of January flu and gradually building up strength for the February fanatics.

If I do as well with the fanatics as I did with the flu, I will score a double eagle. I look forward to my midwinter miseries as the year's best chance to catch up on reading.

I read "The Territorial Imperative" by Robert Ardrey.

I had more pleasure and stimulation than I have had out of any book since you coerced me into reading Sir James Frazer's "The Golden Bough" years ago.

I never was able to think the same about magic, religion and science after that—and now I can say without reservation I never will be able to think the same about the behavior of human beings.

Funny things about the Ardrey book is, of course, that it isn't primarily about human beings. It is about other animals, but the reader gets the message long before it is spelled out for him.

All of us animals feel the same way about our territory. We have the strength of 10 when we think about home base. The sense of territory is ingrained in us.

All of us who have been troubled by the long-running debate between schools of hereditary and environment can thank Ardrey for giving us a leg to stand on when we doubt that environment is responsible for as much as it is blamed and praised for.

We have made our own observations of animal behavior independently of environmental claims. We have seen our pet dogs bare their fangs at intruders. We have seen the meekest of animals—sheep—defend territory where their lambs were quartered.

We have marveled at the way misled Russians turned back German invaders in World War II, because they were defending "Mother" Russia—not Joe Stalin's mish-mash of bungled leadership.

And lately, of course, we have been wondering why it is taking so many billions of dollars and so many thousand young lives to carry on the American crusade in Southeast Asia—the most powerful nation on earth baffled by a rag-tag outfit of half-starved little men.

Isn't it because the little men are defending their own territory against invaders and therein have the strength of 10? What else could it be?

I've always had a personal sense of thinking I could predict human reaction in most circumstances. Mr. Ardrey's study in depth of what makes animals behave the way they do gives me a leg to stand on.

I am not buying everything he says about instinctual behavior, because it seems to me his generalizations are too broad. He acknowledges that animals sometimes go contrary to the predictable pattern—and I do not want to slam the door on the possibility men may be improved someday, somehow, to some degree.

His book made my attack of January flu worthwhile. Your aunt says to tell you our dog Mittie also is sick and she is undecided whether he has the flu or I have distemper but she hopes it is the former because I never have had distemper shots.

COTTON CORNERS UNCLE GEORGE

Among composers of the classical period, the most prolific was Wolfgang Mozart (1756-91), who wrote 600 operas, operettas, symphonies, violin sonatas, divertimenti, serenades, motets, concertos for piano and many other instruments, string quartettes, other chamber music, masses and liturgies — of which only 70 were published before he died at the age of 35.

A Real Appetite!

Power Of The Committee Chair

By Raymond Moley

The lurid fireworks in the Adam Clayton Powell case have cost the House of Representatives a great deal in respect, influence and prestige.

That sovereign American citizen, called by some the "Man in the Street" and by the more cynical "Mr. Sap," will view his representative in the House as a poor fellow who goes to Washington with great expectations and then becomes the creature of forces beyond his control.

Until the Democratic caucus, sustained by the White House in a precedent-making outburst of power, yanked the chair of the Education and Labor Committee from under the sprawling haunches of the arrogant playboy from the 18th District, New York, the 30-odd fellow members of that committee were mere names in a book and numbers in a roll call — when a vote was allowed by the chair.

POWELL HIRED, used for personal purposes, played with and ordered about the committee staff members. He and he alone decided what bills were to be cleared for a vote in the House, made the speaker and - or President of the United States wait upon his pleasure — repeat, pleasure — and decided what millions of Americans might get in benefits from their own tax money.

We all have paid dearly for this bizarre lesson in government. The power of committees and of chairmen over committees has existed from the beginning of the Republic. Perceptive writers and commentators have written about it in learned books and college professors have expounded about it to sleepy students but it needed a juicy scandal to get the point over to the generality of citizens and taxpayers.

The power of chairmen as a part of the House committee system has been the inevitable result of the form of government created under our Constitution. It's a system peculiar to the United States.

IT WAS A HUMBLE graduate student at Johns Hopkins, the President-to-be, Woodrow Wilson, who first systematically pointed out for generations of students the unique nature of the U.S. House of Representatives. That was in his book "Congressional Government," published 82 years ago.

Later he summed up his evaluation of the House in another book, "Constitutional Government." Among his comments then were these:

"The House once debated; now it does not debate. It has not the time. There would be too many debaters and there are too many subjects to debate. It is a business body, and it must get its business done."

"It organizes itself into committees . . . in order that each piece of legislative business may be systematically attended to by a body small enough to digest and perfect it. . . . The business of the House is what its committees choose to make it."

Wilson, at the time he said that in 1908, did not dwell upon the quite natural fact that the committees were to be governed and controlled by their chairman. For at that time the speaker controlled the committees and the committee chairmen. In 1910 the power of the speaker was reduced and ever after the committee chairmen selected by seniority have been in control.

IN GENERAL, committee chairmen have carried their responsibilities well. When a chairman is experienced, wise and respected he decides what is to be considered, what is to be done about reporting a bill to the House and, in many cases, what action the House will take.

I might cite many examples of this power of chairmen but one will suffice. In February, 1937, President Roosevelt proposed his court-packing bill. Hutton Summers, the shrewd and learned member from Dallas, was chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

He opposed the President's bill and he simply did not permit his committee to debate or consider the bill for six angry months. The Senate Judiciary Committee had hearings and after those months the bill died. The real credit for killing the bill was the Democrat from Texas who defied a President who the year before had carried 46 states.

Powerful Presidents since have encountered this hard fact of the power of chairmen but the system stands inviolate. It stands because it is in the nature of representative government that it should stand.

Magnetic Hills

There are places in the United States where water seems to flow uphill and cars can roll up a slope from a dead start.

Baffled observers have decided that such hills are magnetic and many have written inquiries to the National Geographic Society.

The society has received letters reporting mystery spots in New York state, Georgia, Florida, the Dakotas and New Brunswick, Canada. A couple driving near Olean, N. Y., was startled to see water apparently flowing uphill in a ditch.

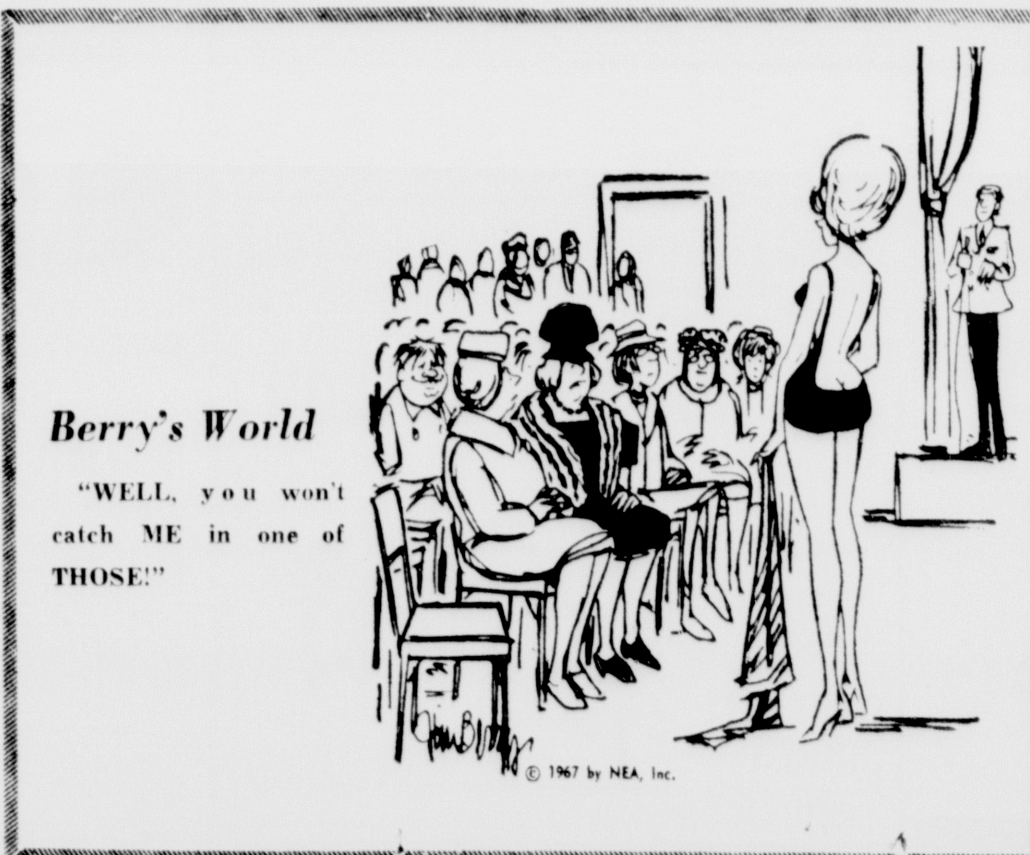

George Crossette, chief of the society's Geographic Research Division, says, "Investigations by scientists usually indicate the phenomena described are the result of optical illusions. In some cases, the illusions are caused by the tilting of trees, houses and other objects due to a landslide in the area."

Crime

By David Lawrence

It Could Be Key 1968 Issue

With all the billions of dollars to be spent on the "Great Society," it's amazing that virtually nothing is being provided to organize effective war on crime throughout the country.

The rate of crime is growing every year. In the nation's capital, the rise in serious crime is three times the national average. But a bill dealing with the problem in the District of Columbia was recently vetoed by President Johnson because of its "possible" unconstitutionality.

It seems certain now that one of the biggest issues in the 1968 campaign will be crime — the inability of a citizen to walk the streets in safety.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., in a speech to the Senate Wednesday, pointed out not only that the federal government has a responsibility to act but that the Supreme Court by its decisions has made it easier for the criminal to escape punishment.

The President has promised to recommend legislation to help combat crime. One problem, however, is how the states are going to get enough money to do the job.

Apart from the inadequacy of public funds for states and cities to multiply the number of their policemen and detectives, the biggest single obstacle today is the attitude of the Supreme Court, which has made it more difficult to convict persons who have committed a crime.

Numerous technicalities have been interjected so criminals have more and more ways to evade the law.

SEN. MCCLELLAN said federal legislation is urgently needed with respect to the admissibility of evidence obtained through voluntary confessions and other statements made by suspects after their arrest. The Arkansas senator said:

"Congress simply must rectify the mockery of justice and protect society from the dire consequences of a number of recent 5-to-4 Supreme Court decisions that allow self-confessed, vicious criminals to go free."

"Self-confessed criminals should be punished — not liberated. These enemies of law and order and decent society should be penalized — not freed on the basis of frivolous and dubious technicalities."

"A majority of the Supreme Court appears to be so obsessed in its quest of discovering new rights for the criminal and so enthusiastic in its efforts to magnify and articulate them that it has lost sight of law enforcement — an indispensable ingredient of our internal security."

The senator referred to what is known as the Miranda case, in which the Supreme Court declared that no confession — even if wholly voluntary — can be admitted in evidence in state or federal criminal proceedings unless, before any questioning by the police, the accused is given a lengthy warning about his rights.

Just why policemen must give preference to the rights of the criminal, instead of to the rights of the public, is difficult to understand.

THE AMERICAN people are bewildered and dismayed by decisions of the high court and have been expecting President Johnson, as the leader of his party, to recommend to Congress a comprehensive program to halt the rise in crime.

His apparent indifference to conditions in the District of Columbia has resulted in criticism.

It is evident now that without waiting for the President to act Congress itself will have to do something about the nationwide problem.

Otherwise, in the 1968 campaign, the issue could bring about the defeat of many Democrats seeking re-election.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q.—What is a foolproof way to make sure my candles will light quickly without a hitch at a birthday, wedding, or reception?

A.—Light each candle wick and snuff it out about 30 minutes before the candles are to be used. Then dip the wicks lightly into lighter fluid. When the big moment comes, you'll be able to go right down the line with every candle flaming perfectly as it is lit.

Q.—Sometimes when my husband's shirts come back from the laundry, the collars have rough edges that irritate his neck. Is there any way I can remedy this?

A.—Try rubbing the top edge of these collars with paraffin wax, and this will eliminate the hurt.

Q.—Can you suggest a substitute for a chamomile?

A.—Pieces of velveteen are excellent substitutes for chamomiles, do a fine polishing job, and are easily laundered.

Q.—What can I do with mismates of hosiery whose mates have been discarded because of runs?

A.—Throw all these mismates into boiling water, and they will all turn the same shade.

Q.—How can I renovate a manuscript on which the writing is almost entirely effaced?

A.—Take a brush and wash the effaced part with a solution of prussiate of potash in water, and the writing should appear again if the paper has not been destroyed.

Work Of Highway Patrol Outlined At Club Meeting

The organization of the Ohio State Highway Patrol and its functions were outlined in a talk by Sgt. Ralph J. Rizzo, commander of the Lisbon post, during the program at the luncheon meeting of the Lions Club Friday at the Travelers Hotel.

An effort has been made during the past year to cut down on "paperwork" so that patrolmen may spend more time on the highways, Rizzo said.

The primary objectives of the patrol, Rizzo continued, are to enforce traffic rules and regulations, investigate traffic accidents and attempt to determine their causes so that the number of deaths and injuries may be reduced.

He gave examples of fatal accidents resulting from "a minor distraction or a moment of inattention" and emphasized the necessity of vigilance at all times on the part of drivers.

Excessive speed, left of center operation and poor road conditions are also responsible for a large percentage of major accidents, he added.

He stressed the importance of teaching youngsters the "Rules of the Road" before they learn to operate motor vehicles.

Christ Pallis was program chairman.

The Rev. E. C. Traylor gave the invocation. Ed Shingler presided.

How Can I? By ANNE ASHLEY

Q.—What suggestion can you make on the removal of a ring that is tightly stuck on a finger?

A.—Take a yard-long piece of string, slip one end under the ring toward the back of your hand, and wind it tightly around your finger until it covers the joint above the ring. Then remove the ring by unwinding the string from bottom to top.

Q.—What is a quick lint-removal method for dark clothing?

A.—Use a strip of cellophane tape, wound around your hand, sticky side out, and rub this over your dark clothing. It will catch up the lint, and is a good grooming idea when you are about to go out.

Q.—How can I do a really effective job of cleaning out the inside of a vacuum bottle?

A.—Try filling the vacuum bottle with warm water and add a heaping teaspoon of cooking soda. Let it stand overnight. Do this once a week.

$350,000 Slated For '67 Projects Of People's Gas

The People's Natural Gas Co. has announced some $350,000 is to be spent in 1967 for improvements, additions and replacements in the Western Division, which includes Midland, Burgettstown, Hopewell and Aliquippa.

The utility reported a $10 million budget for the year and predicted record gas sales for the third straight year resulting from continued residential and commercial growth.

The firm's expenditures, according to W. R. Bechdel, manager, are in line with those of recent years, reflecting growth in the service area.

Over half of People's total 1967 budget — $5.8 million — is designated for gas distribution projects within the 280 communities it serves.

The firm will invest $1.2 million for new transmission facilities; $2.3 million is earmarked for production, including new gas wells; $500,000 for general plant improvements, and $100,000 for additional underground storage facilities.

People's will spend about $882,000 on special distribution pipeline extensions to serve new areas — $157,000 more than last year — throughout its 16 county Western Pennsylvania area.

Presbyterian Homes Obtain New Director

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Trustees of the Ohio Presbyterian Homes announce the employment of Dr. Joseph R. Harris as director of promotion and development for the six Ohio home units located in Cincinnati, Sidney, Monroe, Columbus, Akron and Youngstown.

The function of the office will be to develop new resource and financial support for both the operational and capital needs of the homes in an ever-expanding economy.

The Ohio Presbyterian Homes is a religious, charitable endowment corporation, owned, operated, controlled and organized by the Synod of Ohio of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

The general policy is to operate retirement centers for persons that will provide comfortable living quarters, a total health care service and a program for living which includes spiritual guidance, useful work, recreation and hobbies.

The homes were born in 1921 out of the concern of a Women's Sunday School Class in the Troy Presbyterian Church for a maiden lady, who had no one to care for her. Since then, their chief concern has been, and is, "for the physical well-being and spiritual welfare of each one of the residents to the end that they may live in an atmosphere of confidence and well-being, with the assurance that they are secure among friends."

As a church agency for health and welfare, there is constant striving to improve the services and facilities that will add to the comfort and health of all who live in the homes. The congregations and ministers of the Synod of Ohio Presbyterian Churches have enriched the programs and activities of the homes by providing entertainment, religious services and leadership in hobbies and crafts.

They also have contributed annual financial support so the 33 per cent of the residents who require outside help may receive adequate care. Residents are received regardless of race or denominational affiliation.

Court Fight Won At $6,000 Cost Instead Of Zero

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (AP) — It cost Ralph Watson about $6,000, but he finally won his appeal on a conviction which would not have cost him a cent.

Watson, 50, was arrested in 1963 for selling a copy of "Lust Pad" to Dale Crabtree, district attorney at the time. He was convicted in 1964 of disseminating obscene material and received a $100 suspended fine.

Watson took the conviction to the State Supreme Court. He estimates it cost him $6,000 in legal fees. The American Civil Liberties Union paid the balance of the cost.

A jury acquitted Watson Thursday night after a four-day retrial which was ordered by the State Supreme Court. During the trial the entire text of "Lust Pad" was read to the jurors.

A MOMENT OF MEDITATION

"Just So You Live Right"

Some time ago as I was talking with a lady in an effort to get her to begin attending the public services of the church, I was told that it really isn't important to be a member of the church. She stated that all this is of any importance is just living a good life. Perhaps there are many others besides this good woman who hold this same conviction. I do not doubt their sincerity and yet I believe this idea to be false.

First, let me state that I do believe that it is necessary for men and women to live a good life. We all are aware of the fact that too many people are living lives that would not even conform unto good moral standards. The standards of living have been greatly reduced in recent years. In Building Authority Discussion

McElroy To Be In Ohio Spotlight

By WILLIAM V. MERRIMAN
Review Staff Correspondent
COLUMBUS, Ohio — After four years as administrative assistant to Gov. James A. Rhodes and seven years as U.S. Sen. John W. Bricker's chief aide in Washington, bright lights and noise bring hardly a blink to the steady gaze of John McElroy.

Next week promises plenty of both. He'll be center stage Monday when the curtain lifts on the second week of Ohio's early legislative season, spectacular, the Ohio Building Authority.

To Talk to Mayors
He is expected to remain in the lead role Monday when mayors from 15 Ohio cities gather here at Gov. Rhodes' request for a briefing on the proposed constitutional amendment which the Rhodes administration is advancing as the means to an orderly, continuous, long-range state construction program.

Over Tuesday breakfast McElroy will talk OBA with Senate Republicans and Wednesday it will be more of the same with House Republicans.

In between there will be more appearances before the House Finance Committee, which is sitting the language of the 10-page resolution.

He Does the Talking
It was McElroy who did most of the talking this week during two well-attended hearings. But his pace was not slowed when the legislative week closed Thursday noon. That afternoon a newsman found him shuffling through 17 pink slips requesting return telephone calls.

To be sure, the push for quick passage of the measure has other performers.

For the long view of state finances there's Richard L. Krabach, the state's finance director.

Krabach's calm, reasoned explanation of why the state needs an OBA — "It's just plain good business" — seems to be winning more than a few friends.

Reckman a foe
For a hard, critical look, leading the way is intense, probing Rep. Robert F. Reckman, R-Hamilton.

Reckman, dumped by the administration as House speaker this session, was a major interrogator on the House Finance Committee during this week's hearings.

And then there's the stage director, Gov. Rhodes. There is no question that the governor is the pace setter in this whirlwind presentation.

Both face obvious challenges to party unity. With three-fifths vote required in both houses for passage of the OBA resolution.

Republicans can afford only two defections among 62 GOP representatives and one among 23 Republican senators — unless the undermined Democratic bloc doesn't remain intact.

But the center stager is Kentucky-born John McElroy, 58.

At the political art of winning friends and influencing people, he plainly is a master.

His credentials are impressive. Ohio State University College of Law.

Assistant to the chief of the Ohio Division of Security in the Department of Commerce (1939-1941).

Assistant chief counsel to the Senate Commerce Committee (1959-1961).

He was disarmingly frank in his replies to Finance Committee questions last week.

Favors Safeguards

He granted that the resolution's language could be tightened to include safeguards against abuse of power by the controlling political party, by the three-member building authority, or by an irresponsible legislature.

He startled several Republican ears by agreeing that a provision in the resolution to defer property tax payment for persons over 65 could be interpreted as a move to pick up votes.

He did not deny that failure to include mention of elementary and secondary education as areas to be included in OBA financing was an oversight which could be corrected in a final draft of the resolution.

His deft and candid answers brought public thank-yous from both Democratic and Republican members of the committee.

Rochester General In Program

Beaver Hospital May Get Mental Health Facilities

Funds for a planned new Beaver County mental health facility are included in a proposal announced Friday by the Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare.

The facility would be constructed at the Rochester General Hospital, according to the plan for nine other projects for which $1,861,611 in federal funds would be sought.

Max Rosenn, secretary of the welfare department, said at Harrisburg Friday afternoon the services to be provided by these facilities would become "an integral part of community mental health programs" developed under the 1966 Mental Health and Mental Retardation Act.

If the request is approved, the state would add $1,840,301 and local groups would contribute another $719,862, Rosenn said.

Brown Wants Election Laws Geared To 'Automated Age'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Secretary of State Ted W. Brown asked the legislature today to gear Ohio election laws to the "automated age" of fast returns on contests for top national, state and congressional races.

Ohio's chief election official offered a proposal he said would assist "pool" election night coverage by news services and broadcasting networks, called News Election Service (NES). Using data processing machines, NES whipped out a record fast national count on the 1964 vote for president and on last year's congressional and other races.

But Brown said officials in many of Ohio's 13,000 polling places complained that NES representatives gathering returns caused confusion "harmful to our over-all program of fostering good relations between boards of election and local news media."

Service Projects Are Listed During Girl Scout Meeting

Several service projects were announced during the Chester-Newell Neighborhood Girl Scout Adult meeting Thursday night at the Chester First United Presbyterian Church.

Members of Mrs. Ralph Wolfe's Junior Troop are planning a story - telling project for the Hancock County Children's Home and Mrs. Nelson Campbell's Brownie troop made favors for the Fox Nursing Home.

Mrs. Wilbur Staley, Girl Scout week chairman, announced that a week will be presented on Sunday, March 12, at the Chester First Christian Church, beginning at 2:30 p.m. Church bulletins will be supplied for that Sunday to the churches where the troops meet.

Mrs. Eugene Robinson and Cadette Troop 486 are working on a Girl Scout window display for Chester and the Brownie and

GOP Leaders Set Study On Any Tax Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leaders said today Congress should not even consider raising taxes "until we — as an effective minority — are sure the budget can be cut no further."

They took that position in a memo to GOP senators and their staffs, appraising President Johnson's $135 billion budget and his call for a 6 per cent surcharge on corporate and most individuals' income taxes.

The memo, prepared by the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said spending during each of the past two years has exceeded the outlays announced in the budget.

"Mr. Johnson says he will spend $135 billion next year," the Republicans said. "Judging by past performance, he'll actually spend somewhere between $150 billion and $160 billion."

The GOP memo said Johnson "now admits yearly expenditures in Vietnam are actually $10 billion higher than he — or his spokesmen — stated" in the 1966 budget.

The Republicans called that "the election year defense dip." "The President's budgets have simply not reflected the grim realities of war," they said.

Legislative leaders said Brown's bill would be introduced Monday night when lawmakers return for their fifth week of the current session.

The measure proposes a priority count in appropriate election years in this order: president and vice president, governor, U.S. senator and congressmen.

The bill also would: —Require immediate posting of tabulations outside each polling place in a readily accessible place. —Set a maximum penalty of 60 days in jail and $500 fine for removing or tampering with posted tabulations.

The Era Of The Extra

Reporting Elections Formerly Pushed Newspapers
To Frantic Early Morning Efforts For Publication

By ROBERT POPP

THE ELECTION EXTRA is another newspaper institution that has gone into an unmarked grave.

Until the newsprint and personnel shortages of World War II intervened, dailies—and some weeklies—throughout the United States marshalled all their forces twice a year to print an extra edition in the wee hours after each election.

They carried the magic word "Extra" in big type in the "cars" on either side of the top of Page One. Days of careful planning went into the preparation for a frantic rush crammed into a few hours after the polls closed—sembling the facts and figures, writing the stories, setting the type and starting the press run.

But the election extra died in World War II, when the nation had more important things on its mind. It never was revived generally.

The last true extra published by The Review was in August 1945 when the Japanese surrendered. "Japs Give Up," the headline screamed in boxcar type. Thousands of families in the tri-state area still have copies of that edition stashed away in the bottom of cedar chests or filed with mementoes in dresser drawers.

Some copies of the Nov. 22, 1963, edition also carried the word "Extra." Reporting the first facts on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, the edition actually was a Page One make-over after the press run started.

Tom Jones of the YMCA, retired editor of The Review, recalls many an extra published by the papers—on fires, slayings, elections.

He remembers sending the late Frank R. O'Hanlon, veteran newsman and longtime clerk of the Columbiana County board of elections, on an assignment to Beaver to cover the hanging of a convicted wife-killer.

The prisoner somehow managed to obtain poison before the execution time, and committed suicide, Jones said, and an extra was published.

He said The Tribune, which still had a flatbed press after The Review obtained a rotary press, often got its papers on the street first in event of a big story because the morning paper didn't have to process the pages through stereotype.

THOSE OF US who lived through the era of the election extra that ended a quarter century ago never will forget the excitement—and drudgery—of putting together a newspaper in the middle of the night, then tearing it apart about dawn to start on a brand new issue with later developments and fuller accounts of the previous day's polling results.

Managing editors, city editors and state editors huddled days before the election, carefully working out the details of the coverage. The circulation department invited subscribers to place orders for the extra edition for home delivery.

And newsboys, both regulars and volunteers, were recruited to take armloads of the papers into the streets for sale the moment the press run started.

Even in its palmiest days, the extra edition was a money-loser because the advertising was limited strictly in order that as much news as possible could be crammed into a few pages. But newspapers throughout the land dutifully came out with an extra after each election. They knew the public had no other way of getting reliable information quickly on the results.

Even in the pre-World War II days, the results of national and state contests were heralded across the country by radio networks. But citizens needed the newspaper to furnish quick information on local and district races.

In the days before a primary or general election, the news staff prepared report forms to be sent to correspondents throughout the tri-state area, along with detailed letters of instructions. The correspondents' task was to take up a post outside a polling place and obtain the results the minute they were posted.

THE WORK WAS trebled in all general elections and some of the primaries because it involved dealing with returns from sections of Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Meanwhile, in the newsroom, charts were prepared to list precinct breakdowns of the important races in the tri-state area. These, hopefully, were to be completed on election night with data obtained by the correspondents, through the various election boards and with the cooperation of the two parties' headquarters.

A big blackboard usually was erected in the huge plate glass window in front of the business office. There running totals were maintained on the returns for the races for important offices. Crowds gathered on the street in front of the window to keep track of the changing totals.

Business office people were pressed into service to help enter figures onto charts, but particularly because of their deft touch with adding machines.

Youthful employees of the circulation department ran errands at unusual speed, wide-eyed at the excitement they didn't understand.

Other workers in the advertising and business offices helped answer the public's telephoned questions about results. New figures were rushed to them as quickly as they became available.

Over it all hung the aura of thick cigar smoke and coffee boiling in an unwatched percolator.

In the tiny newsroom, a half a dozen reporters and editors worked an 18-hour shift to gather the figures pouring in from all sources, whip them into some semblance of order and write stories before the deadline, which usually fell at 2 a.m.

WHILE PANDEMONIUM reigned in the newsroom, correspondents seemed literally to whisper the figures over the static-laden rural telephone lines of those days. Duplications had to be weeded out. Figures sometimes were exchanged with the political party headquarters, which maintained their own reporting systems.

At the deadline, the stories often reported final results in minor races involving a comparatively small number of precincts. But in other contests, the reporter only could cite the trend between two opposing candidates, working with figures from perhaps 75 per cent of the county's precincts.

The stories would point out that Smith was leading Jones by a narrow margin on the basis of returns from 90 of 110 precincts. If returns still were not complete and yet it was apparent that Jones had triumphed over Smith, it was customary to roust Smith from bed or the nearest tavern and asked him if he "conceded" victory to his opponent.

Candidates and their supporters and sometimes just interested bystanders tramped in and out of the newspaper office all night, sitting on the reporters' desks, looking over their shoulders while they typed and dipping liberally into the coffee and sandwiches the management had provided as sustenance for the writers.

At the last minute, just before the deadline, bulletins would be jammed into the page forms at the top of stories to catch up with some late development in a close race.

Then, for less than an hour, the reporters had a brief respite. The break came between the time the last pages were sent to the pressroom and the actual start of the press.

THE MOMENT THE wet copies were delivered from the pressroom, the city editor grabbed a huge pair of shears and carefully trimmed out all the local election stories.

These were handed back to the reporters who had written them. By now it was about 4 a.m., just before dawn on a shift than already had stretched across at least 10 hours. The reporters' job was to update their stories for the regular edition that would be coming off the press at 2 in the afternoon.

If the results were complete by now in a certain race, the story would be rewritten to explain that Smith had won over Jones, according to complete but unofficial returns. If the figures were not complete, it was the reporters' job to get the data and rewrite the story in time for the afternoon edition.

Shortly after the press started, circulation trucks went roaring into the streets, carrying bundles of newspapers to drop-off points all over the city.

At the same time, newsboys grabbed armloads of the newspapers and went onto the sidewalks shouting: "Extra, Extra!" They sold the papers by the hundreds to sleepy-eyed potters on their way to work and anxious to know the name of their new mayor or councilman.

Tom Jones, retired Review editor and columnist displays to Jeffrey Martin of 137 Thompson Ave., Review carrier, the last true "extra" published in East Liverpool - reporting the end of World War II

By this time the politicians all had gone to bed, the winners as well as the losers.

The news staff hunted up an all-night restaurant to eat a hearty breakfast at the company's expense. Then they headed back to a room cluttered knee deep in cigar butts, paper finish the task of writing all over again the stories they had written for the extra.

It was the end of a long night and the beginning of a long day.

The Daily Crisis, which was published by James Deidrick - center with hands in pockets - served East Liverpool from 1884 to 1904, and provided some lively competition for other papers before it was purchased by The News Review.

Longtime Review city editor Paul Walton of 144 Fawcett St., now retired, was for many years the key man in coverage of area elections and served as the Associated Press correspondent for this district.

BEAVER TRAPPING in Columbiana County opens Wednesday and trappers are being asked to save the carcasses for biological study being conducted by the state.

If they have no use for them, the skinned, gutted carcass should be taken to the Highlandtown Wildlife Area maintenance building for examination. Dale Henry of Ohio State University is doing the research work, cooperating with the Ohio Division of Wildlife.

Ralph Drake, county game protector, says he will be at the wildlife area to tag beaver pelts instead of at the sheriff's office in Lisbon.

The maintenance building is on Sharp Rd. The hours will be from 6 to 9 p. m. on Feb. 2, 4 and 6, 10 a. m. to noon and 3 to 10 p. m. on Feb. 7, 6 to 9 p. m. on Feb. 9, 10 a. m. to noon and 3 p. m. to 10 p. m. on Feb. 14 and 6 to 9 p. m. on Feb. 16.

Trapping officially ends Feb. 15, but the pelts must be tagged by no later than midnight on Feb. 16.

Dr. Ted Bookout from Ohio State will be with Drake to check the carcasses. The information will enable better management, help set proper seasons and regulate harvesting of the big furbearers. The breeding, sex, age ratio and population levels also are being checked in the study.

Letters have been mailed those who trapped beaver last year, but anyone who catches any this year is asked to cooperate.

Not more than three No. 3 or larger double spring traps are permitted this year. Trapping on or within 10 feet of a dam or a home is prohibited.

Trapping is only permitted in Ashtabula, Athens, Carroll, Columbiana, Coshocton, Gallia, Guernsey, Harrison, Jackson, Jefferson, Mahoning, Morgan, Muskingum, Noble, Stark, Trumbull, Vinton, Washington and Williams Counties.

The trapping season for raccoon, opossum, mink and muskrat ends Feb. 18.

Pennsylvania's beaver season is from Feb. 11 through March 12. The bag limit is three. No trapping is permitted at Game Commission posted dams. Nonresidents are not allowed to trap beaver.

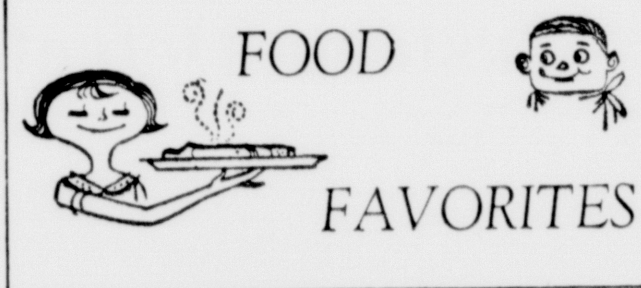

One person may operate 10 traps although they cannot be set on the dam or house or within 25 feet of the water line of the structures. Pelts must be tagged within 10 days of the season.

OHIO'S SECOND wild turkey season will be May 3-6. Applications for 500 free permits are being accepted by the Division of Wildlife at Columbus and must be postmarked by March 24. A public drawing will be held March 28.

The hunting is in the southern part of the state. This year each permit holder can take a friend with him. This was not allowed last year.

Send your name, address and hunting license number when making application on a postcard.

BRADY'S RUN PARK in Beaver County will be the site for the 1967 Pennsylvania Outdoor Pistol Championship June 10-11.

It is being conducted under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Rifle and Pistol Association in Cooperation with the National Rifle Association. The Beaver Valley Rifle and Pistol Club is handling the arrangements.

The club's range is one of the largest and most attractive in the state. The shoot is open to the public. Entries are expected from Ohio, West Virginia, Michigan, Virginia, Maryland and Kentucky.

THE PENNSYLVANIA FISH commission will meet Monday at Harrisburg. Included on the agenda will be reorganization of field assignments for wardens; propose a new class of warden trainees to start sometime in June; examination of the 1967 development schedule; consideration of Project 70 proposals; consider participation in a Delaware River Basin Fisheries Study; and discuss fish and boating legislation.

ICE FISHING is not recommended in Ohio or Pennsylvania because of the warm weather.

Ice conditions are dangerous and extreme caution is urged. Although there is ice on Lake Erie, the word I received this week from the Sandusky area is that it is not suitable for fishing.

There is 4 to 7 inches in the Presque Isle Bay near Erie, Pa., but even here caution is the byword.

Ice is good in some parts of Ohio and Pennsylvania, but the overall picture is not expected to improve until a future freeze.

I watched three fishermen trying their luck at Guilford Lake the past weekend, but they weren't doing very good.

NEW RATES for the rental of family vacation cabins and camp sites in Pennsylvania State Parks have been announced by Maurice K. Goddard, secretary of Forests and Waters.

The new rates reflect the first increase since the start of the 1962 camping season. They are as follows:

1. Camp sites with primitive facilities: $1.25 a night.
2. Camp sites with modern facilities: $1.75 a night.
3. Family vacation cabin rents have been increased $1 a night.

"These increases," the secretary said, "are due to the additional cost for maintaining and administering these facilities for public use."

Inquiries relating to the rental of state park family cabins and camp sites may be directed to any one of the following: State Parks Regional Office 1, Box 390, Emporium, Pa. 15834; State Parks Regional Office 2, R. YOU CAN BELIEVE there's more than one fish in the sea, but would you believe some of the oddest names in fishdom?

Take this batch of unlikely handles: boo-hoo, windowpane, puddingwife, tobaccobox, stumpknocker, chilipepper, tattler, sweeper, lookdown, seven-eleven, schoolmaster, Scotchman and idiot (one in every crowd).

Or this fine groupings: shovelhead catfish, barndoor skate, flatiron herring, snubnose darter, half-blind goby, three-toothed lamprey, swivelhead pipefish and V-lip redhorse.

And among the freshwater fishes: Chubs—bigeye, thicklip, redeye, bluehead and rosyside. Shiners—pugnose, popeye, burthead, warpaint, taillight and stargazing. Minnows—tonguetied, flathead, roundnose and tailmouth. Suckers—bridgeline, harelip and flannelmouth.

Other commonplace names include—treefish, pinfish, hogfish, roosterfish, goatfish, cowfish, balloonfish, combfish, dollarfish, foolfish, robbifish, ratfish, and to keep them all clean—the soapfish. To keep them all healthy—the doctorfish and the surgeonfish.

To top them all there's even a Dixieland jazz combo available with the trumpetfish, cornetfish, hornpout, guitarfish and the drum.

What's in a fishy name?

The 35 mm. slide was described by the editors as unique because of the natural texture screen provided by the raindrops on the window pane, and the soft, diffused background and trees.

The Verse Box

I'M Afraid Of Virginia Wolfe

Mother, dear, when I was young,
Sprinkled pepper on my tongue,
If a nasty word or phrase,
I uttered in those early days.

Now behold! In book, on screen,
We see and hear that speech obscene,
While critics say, as like as not,
Such talk is vital to the plot.

Alas! my mother — may she rest —
Thought that what she did was best,
Little knowing my untrained mind,
Was being left so far behind.

Then more drastic words than "damn,"
Were softly said behind the barn,
Where we smoked, led lines of sin,
Along the lines of old Huck Finn.

But in public we used care,
That none should hear us curse or swear;
How could we know there'd come a day,
When these were proper things to say?

So now, of course, I feel absurd —
I still avoid the unclean word —
And find myself, ah! much too late,
Unable to communicate.

I must find something else to do,
Than read Virginia Wolfe — Tom Jones, too,
I'll try to do my civic duty,
And stick to stories like Black Beauty.

As for the pepper people — Wow! —
I wonder how they're doing now,
Since mothers do not train their young,
By putting pepper on their tongue?

YOUR SYSTEM OF VALUES

It has been part of our cultural training that we have been made extremely value conscious in our generation.

It seems that survival and security are in a large measure dependent upon our ability to access the intimate and ultimate worth of objects, activities, hours, and investments. At this time in the yearly cycle we are forced to review these values as we prepare inventories and reports.

Likewise, we must exercise value — judgments each day as we respond or refuse to respond to the advertisements, pressures, opportunities, and choices that daily confront us.

We would be advantaged to recall that Jesus Christ about whom there has been no small stir during recent weeks, had somewhat to do with the whole matter of values.

THE VERY fact of his arrival on the scene is indicative that as far as God is concerned, each human being is a creature of immeasurable worth.

Was it not due to the in-

nate value of man to His Creator, that God commissioned His Son to share our existence in order to bring us the full value of "life" in the qualitative sense of that word? This is what the Christmas drama has been trying to communicate to us — you are worth something to God for see what great value he places upon you.

The price tag on each of us reads, "His Son". Remember your worth and don't sell yourself cheap to persons, or habits, or causes that do not respect your value.

Because Jesus had a lot of influence on life — value, it results that the embodiment of His teaching in the Bible and the Church, likewise has much to do with value systems.

It greatly simplifies both to study them in light of what they teach concerning the basic values of living that bring to life the highest measure of fulfillment.

Due to the penetrating influence these have had on our way of life, it is nearly impossible to exist apart from them altogether.

IN FACT, I am willing to gamble that many more people are seeking to live by the values which Jesus Christ imparted than are willing to give Him the credit.

This is often all that prevents one from being Christian, or at least, a churchman. However, if you observed Christmas at your house, you were probably giving Him more credit for your life-values than you realized.

Perhaps there would be an extra value for you to realize it!

OFF THE RECORD

By Ed Reed

"If women are smarter than men, how come we have to support you when we grow up?"

You And The Law

"You're a dirty, rotten crook!" Chuck told his neighbor one day as they argued in Chuck's garage.

"I'll sue you for defamation of character," the neighbor said, "I'm not going to be called names."

Can the neighbor sue Chuck in this case?

Probably not, unless a third party heard the accusation. Unless this third party heard Chuck call his neighbor a "dirty, rotten crook," there is no defamation of character because only the two of them — Tom and the neighbor — heard it.

Spoken defamation is known as slander. Written defamation is libel.

IF CHUCK had written a notice and posted it in his yard calling his neighbor a "dirty rotten crook" — when the neighbor was, in fact, no such thing — then the neighbor could file suit. By posting the letter, then Chuck made the accusation public.

However, if Chuck had written the accusation in a private letter, it might not have been libel because the charge was made in private. However, if a third party should see the letter, then Chuck could be headed for trouble.

But if the neighbor was, in fact, a "dirty, rotten crook" and Chuck could prove it, there would most likely be nothing the neighbor could do about the situation. Truth is the perfect defense for libel or slander.

Oak Glen Evens Score With Beaver Local In 59-47 Win

4th Period Spurt Led By Carnes

Oak Glen squared the season account with Beaver Local in avenging an earlier loss with a 59-47 surprise Friday night on the Oak Glen floor.

Only earlier this month, Coach Bob Starkey's improving Bears, lost by a 27-point margin, 67-40 at Beaver Local but turned the tables last night.

THE VICTORY was the fourth in the last five games for the Golden Bears who have an overall 5-9 mark. Beaver Local suffered its sixth setback against eight victories.

Coach Lloyd Stockdale watched his Beavers have a poor shooting night hitting only 19 of 78 shots for a sub-freezing 24 per cent.

Oak Glen made 22 of 58 for 38 per cent and scored when it counted in the final period.

A TIGHT contest for three quarters, the two teams were tied 28-28 at halftime. The nip and tuck battle continued through the third period with Oak Glen managing a 39-38 edge at the end of three periods.

Beaver Local lost its leading scorers and rebounders when Bill Barnhart and Rex Campbell fouled out in the final period. This left the way clear for Oak Glen to pull away in the final minutes.

JIM CARNES led the fourth quarter rally which saw Oak Glen outscore Beaver Local, 20-9. Carnes scored eight points on a field goal and six fouls including a four-point play in the final eight minutes.

Carnes stole the ball then scored only to be fouled after his basket and converted both ends of a one and one situation.

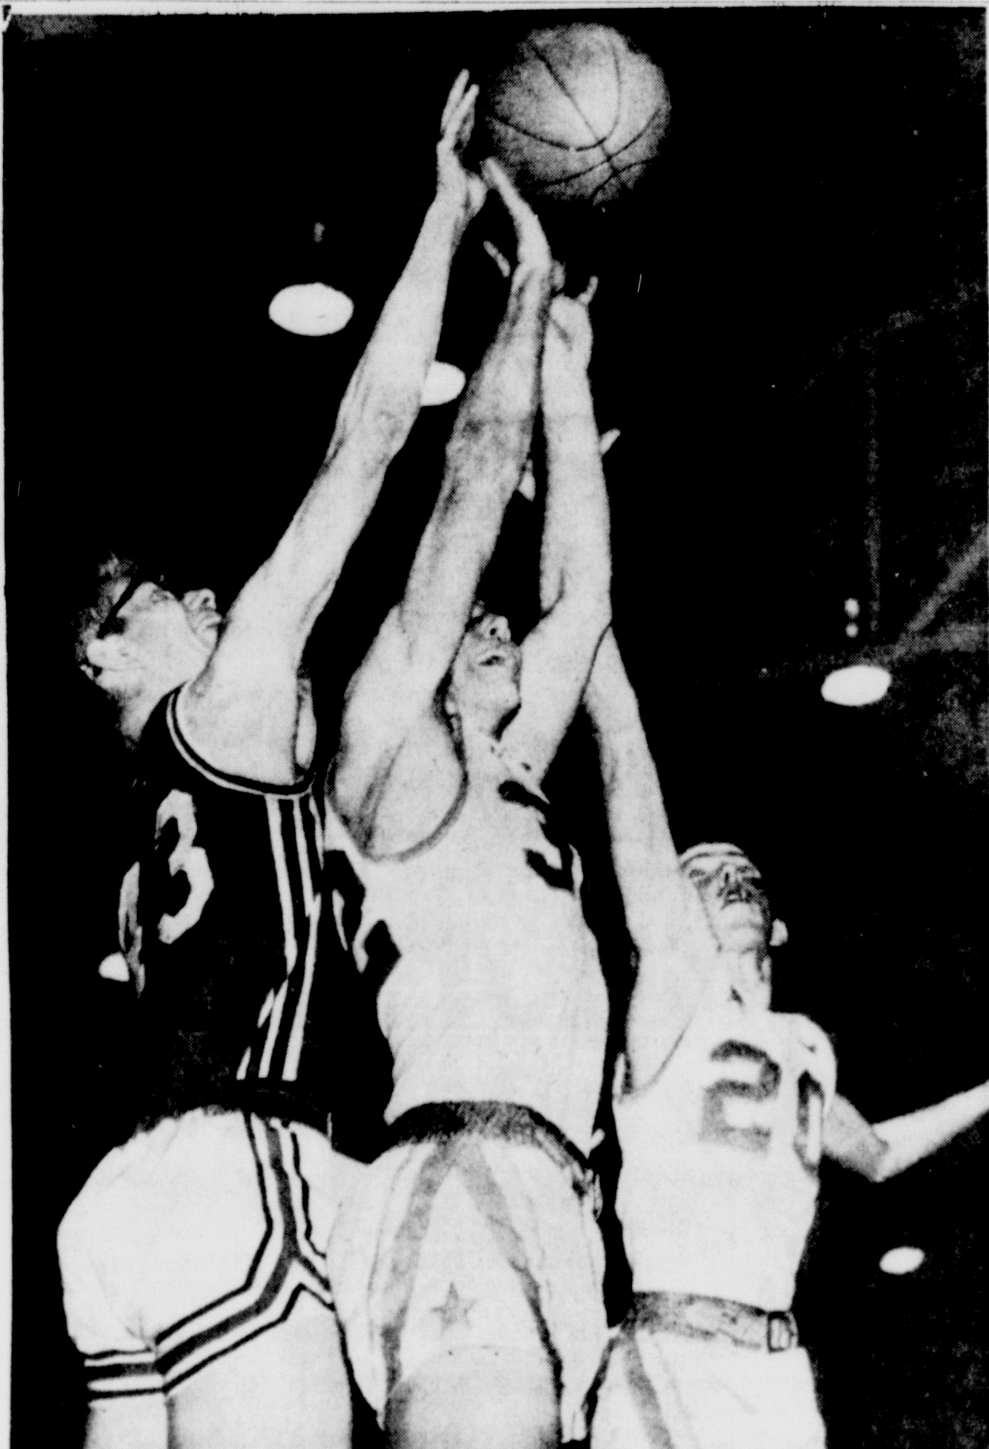

Carnes pumped in 18 points to lead the scoring parade for Oak Glen while Dan Crago added 12. John Zielinsky pulled down 12 rebounds but Oak Glen was out-rebounded by the Beavers 53-41.

JOHN ROACH who contributed eight points to the attack also was credited with 10 big assists for the game.

Barnhart led Beaver Local in a losing cause with 16 points while Jeff Hall pushed in 12 markers.

BEAVER LOCAL returns to action next Friday at home against United while Oak Glen entertains Wellsville Tuesday night.

Midland Given New Life, Section 6 Race Tied

BEAVER LOCAL'S Rex Campbell (dark jersey) was called for fouling Oak Glen's Dan Crago (center) during a battle for a rebound in Friday night's Oak Glen-Beaver Local contest at Oak Glen. No. 20 for Oak Glen is Jim Carnes.

Leopards Win, Rams Upset Monaca

The Section 6 race was thrown into a scramble Friday night as Midland received new life when Rochester scored a 77-68 surprise over Monaca Friday night on the Rochester floor.

While the Rams were handing Monaca its first Section loss, Midland ran up an 84-44 victory over Beaver on the Leopard court.

LAST NIGHT'S action left Coach Hank Kuzma's Leopards in a tie with Monaca for the lead with both teams owning 8-1 records.

Coach Jim Harris' Rochester team still has an outside chance in the race but both Midland and Monaca would have to lose Midland's only loss was to Monaca last week while Rochester lost at home to Midland and at Monaca.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 28, 1967 PAGE 10

AS IT stands now, Midland has two big dates remaining and both crucial games are at home. The first red-letter date is Feb. 7 when Rochester plays at Midland while Feb. 14 is the other when the Leopards take on Monaca in what is expected to settle the Section 6 title.

Kuzma's team fashioned a well-balanced attack with all five starters in the double figures. Jeff Lake and Dave Vanlier were the point leaders with 16 each but Jan Samuels added 13. John Williams 12 and Rich Mahurt 11.

Beaver, which played a much closer game at Beaver earlier in the season, was led by Pete Madgar and Wes Mabin with nine each.

An overflow crowd at Crestview High School gymnasium watched powerful North Lima take their 13th victory of the season by stopping Crestview, 65-45.

Both teams played well and each squad had over 40 rebounds. The height and overall excellence of the Zippers was decisive in the 20-point victory.

Crafton Takes 101-91 Nod

Sophomore John Petchel, who had never been in the 20-point category before in his brief varsity career, broke loose for 34 points to set a new Western Beaver High School scoring record but it wasn't enough as the Beavers fell 101-91 Friday night at Crafton in a Section 17-B contest.

Petchel's 34-Point Record Comes In Western Defeat

Friday night, Bill Hapach suffered a badly sprained ankle and Petchel replaced him midway through the first period. The new Western scoring ace tallied two points in the first period, six more in the second, nine in the third then finished with a rousing 17 point barrage in the final period.

Snow Halts UCLA Tilt At Chicago

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Southern Illinois, the small college giant killer with victories over such major powers as Louisville, Texas Western, Wichita and St. Louis, almost was upset by Abilene Christian.

The Salukis, No. 1 in The Associated Press small college basketball poll, came from 15 points back on their home court in Carbondale, Ill. to beat the invading Texans 58-55 Friday night. Abilene started the game with a so-so 7-7 record, the Salukis with 11-2.

The unbeaten UCLA Bruins, top-ranked in the AP's major poll, were snowed out of their game against Illinois in Chicago because of a record 23-inch snow fall. The game, part of a doubleheader program that also listed Brigham Young vs. Chicago Loyola, was rescheduled for Sunday.

Although the Chicago Stadium twin bill was postponed, DePaul whipped Niagara 78-65 on the Blue Demons' campus gym.

The Purple Eagles of Niagara Falls, N.Y., arrived after an 18-hour train trip from Buffalo. Paced by Alan Schug, with 13 points, they pulled to within 56-50 in the second half before DePaul pulled away.

Holy Cross won its fifth straight by defeating Colgate 87-67 at Hamilton, N.Y. while Miami of Florida also won on the road, beating Florida Southern 55-49.

In home court victories on Friday's slim program, Colorado State University whipped the Air Force 81-62, Bates crushed Coast Guard Academy 116-75 and Washington humbled Montana 85-72.

Wilt Rallies In Time To Pace 76ers

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—That familiar 7-foot-1 player with a goatee and wearing No. 13 on his back in Friday night's Philadelphia 76ers-Cincinnati Royals game was really Wilt Chamberlain, although it would be hard to tell it from the scoring figures.

Chamberlain, who holds the National Basketball Association single-game record of 100 points, took only four shots and scored just five points through the first three quarters of the 76ers 110-107 victory.

It wasn't that Chamberlain didn't have the opportunities to score. He apparently chose not to go for the basket, consistently handing off to driving teammates.

The sleeping giant finally awoke in the fourth quarter in which he scored 12 of his 17 points and led the rallying 76ers to their victory, the 21st in the last 23 games.

Asked after the game what the problem was, Chamberlain replied, "the object of the game is to win and we won."

That's all he would say as the big fellow dressed quickly and left the Philadelphia locker room.

In other games, Boston beat Detroit 112-106 and San Francisco trounced Baltimore 143-116.

The 76ers, while Chamberlain was on his self-imposed scoring famine, blew a 15-point lead as the Royals came on to lead them 98-95 with a little more than four minutes remaining.

Chamberlain scored eight of Philadelphia's final 15 points as he whirled around and over Cincinnati rookie Walt Wesley who replaced Connie Dierking when the veteran center fouled out with 3:18 left. Chamberlain twice tied the game and once sent the 76ers ahead in the hectic final minutes.

Actually, a driving layup by Wally Jones with 1:43 to go provided Philadelphia with a lead it never relinquished.

Oscar Robertson of the Royals was the game's high scorer with 39 points.

Boston, which beat the Pistons in Detroit on Wednesday behind the last half heroics of Sam Jones and John Havlicek, relied on the pair again for the victory in Boston.

Jones and Havlicek sparked a second half rally that melted a 64-54 halftime deficit and carried the Celtics to their seventh straight victory. Jones hit 15 of his 26 points in the final half and Havlicek broke 14 of his 23 after the break.

Rick Barry's 39 points paced San Francisco in the Warriors' rout of the Bulls on the West Coast. Nate Thurmond and Paul Neumann added 20 each for the winners. Gus Johnson paced Baltimore with 20.

Confidence Boiling Over In New And Old Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Put a few Pittsburgh Pirates together in the same room, and you'd better crack a window to let out some of the optimism.

Roberto Clemente was a bit cautious. He said the Pirates won't sew up the pennant this year until, well, maybe as late as early September.

Brand-new Pirate Maury Wills said, "On paper we have the best club in the National League. I honestly believe we should win the pennant this year, and we will."

Manager Harry Walker tried to play it cool and shy away from predictions, saying things like, "I definitely feel we have improved our ball club."

Then he blurted out a prediction that pitcher Al McBean, a four-game winner last year, might just win 20 or 25 games this year.

So confident is Walker he says only on occasion will he turn loose Wills, base stealer supreme. He figures Pirate power will move Wills around the base paths.

Said Walker, "We have a club that can score runs, so it won't be absolutely necessary for Maury to pick up that base."

Wills, acquired by Pittsburgh in a winter trade with the Los Angeles Dodgers, said his injured right knee is 100 per cent healed.

The Pirates also acquired pitcher Dennis Ribant from the New York Mets and pitcher Juan Pizarro from the Chicago White Sox.

Clemente, last year's Most Valuable Player in the NL, said that when he heard about the trades, his first thought was: "We're going to win that pennant now, probably by the early part of September." He said the prediction still sticks.

The players, in town for a sports banquet, made the comments Friday at a news conference.

Ribant said that while making the rounds on the winter banquet circuit, a lot of people told him: "If you won 11 with the Mets last year you should win 20 with Pittsburgh."

Ribant's feeling is: "I would love to start, and if I do, I'm setting my goal as 13 or 14 victories this year. If I can do that, I'll feel satisfied."

Minerva Claims 14th At Lisbon

LISBON — The unbeaten Minerva Lions gave another vicious roar in Tri-County League circles with a 94-50 victory over Lisbon good for their 14th straight triumph of the season.

Minerva turned in a torrid first half to take a 53-30 at intermission and held a 73-42 advantage after three periods.

The victory also was the tenth straight in league play for the Lions who were paced by their star Ron Riemenschneider with 21 points, three below his Tri-County average of 24.4.

Teammates Dan Dager and Mike Simms added 18 each for Minerva.

Lisbon was led by Don Blair and Terry Apple with 16 and 15 points respectively. Blair was eight points under his Tri-County average of 24.3.

Minerva shot 45 per cent for the night and Lisbon 40 per cent.

Mauch Feels Phillies Have Best 4 Starters

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Philadelphia Phillies manager Gene Mauch thinks he has the four best starting pitchers in the National League.

And he also thinks his team just might have the best finish in the league, come pennant-deciding time.

Mauch made his rosy comments Friday at a press luncheon here.

He emphasized, though, that the Phils' pennant hopes ride to a large degree on the physical condition of injured first baseman Bill White.

"I wouldn't trade our pennant chances with anybody," he said "this is assuming Bill White will be all right—and Bill White thinks he will."

Mauch says his team will have to better the Pittsburgh Pirates and the San Francisco Giants to win the National League flag. But with his four big starters—Jim Bunning, Chris Short, Larry Jackson and Dick Ellsworth—the Phils have a good chance, he said.

"I don't think any club can match our top four starters. If you count Joey Jay, we have five pitchers who have all won 20 games at some time."

Jay and veteran Ruben Gomez, who will both train with the Phillies spring on a trial basis, may produce some surprises, Mauch said.

Jay was released by the Atlanta Braves last fall but his arm is apparently sound again. He will be given a chance to work into the starting rotation, while Gomez, now 39 and out of the big leagues since 1960, will try for a relief job.

Plastic Pipe Ruling

OHIO BOARD UPHOLDS
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Board of Building Standards turned down Friday an appeal from Jamison Plumbing & Heating Co. of Springfield protesting a board ruling on plastic pipe.

Board Chairman Cecil Rose said the appeal was rejected because the petitioner had not qualified as an interested party under the law. Rose said the board would have reaffirmed a December decision anyway, which said plastic pipe could be used for plumbing drains, waste pipes and ventilation pipes in some construction.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

2 IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving memory of our mother, Emily McDowell, who passed away 12 years ago today. Gone from our home, oh how we miss her. Loving her dearly, her memory we'll keep. Not till life ends shall we forget her. Sacred to the place in life where she sleeps. — Joe McDowell Family.

In loving remembrance of FRED S. CHISLER who departed this life Jan. 27, 1967. They say that time heals all sorrows, but this we cannot believe. For it seems like yesterday that we heard your voice, saw your smile, and held your hand. Sadly missed by your wife, daughter, family and grandchildren.

LISBON — Jack Stewart, 33, of Homeworth, injured June 6 when his motorcycle hit a cow on County Road 400 in Knox Township, filed a $95,377 lawsuit Friday in Columbiana County Common Pleas Court.
The defendants are Walter Johnson and Clarence Mottis, both of Homeworth R.D. 1. Stewart claims Johnson owned the cow and Mottis had the animal's care.
The accident occurred about 2:30 a.m. approximately two miles west of North Georgetown.
Stewart said he was catapulted from the motorcycle, landed on the pavement and received multiple fractures of the skull and a fracture of the right leg.
He said he was in the hospital more than 45 days and has not been able to return to work as a carpenter.

Liquor Bill OK Expected In West Virginia Senate

CHARLESTON — Senate Majority Leader William A. Moreland, D-Monongalia, has predicted the private club liquor bill will pass the West Virginia Senate by a wide margin.
Moreland made his statement Friday after the bill which would enable private clubs to serve drinks to members and guests passed the House by a 68-25 margin.
The bill was introduced into the Senate late Friday and is expected to be referred to the Judiciary Committee for study on Monday.
William Brotherton, D-Kanawha, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said the measure could reach the floor as early as next week.
Only three speeches preceded the roll-call vote Thursday, and only one of those was against the bill sponsored by House Finance Chairman Ivor F. Boiarisky, D-Kanawha, and Del. Fred A. Grewe Jr., R-Ohio.
The bill would enable the state to license "bona fide private clubs," providing they maintain dining facilities. It also calls for a state license fees ranging from $500 to $1,500 a year, depending on club membership. It also contains authorization for municipal license fees to match state fees.
Clubs licensed under the bill also would pay state tax assessments of $1.26 per fifth of liquor sold and 60 cents a fifth on wine.

Del. Charles E. Lohr, D-Mercer, the only House member to speak against the bill, Friday said, "in my humble opinion, it will be held unconstitutional."
Earlier, State Atty. Gen. C. Donald Robertson said in an opinion that lawmakers could pass this type legislation without violating the state constitution.
Opponents of the bill have said they will test the bill in the Supreme Court if it becomes law.
Applause broke out in the galleries after the clerk announced the results of the vote. It prompted Speaker H. Larn White, D-Harrison, to warn that any repetition of the outburst would force him to clear the galleries.

In other action before adjourning for the weekend, the Senate passed 32-0 a bill to outlaw drag racing and approved a series of bills to reclassify the state's primary and secondary roads into four new categories — expressway, trunkline, feeder and state local service. All will go to the House.
The House also called for a public hearing at 2 p.m. Thursday on bills which would radically overhaul the state's tax structure. The bills, introduced in both houses Thursday, would increase the state's annual general revenue by an estimated $30 million.

U.S. Army Building First Base Camp In Viet Delta

DONG TAM, South Vietnam (AP) — The U.S. Army's new base camp in the embattled Mekong Delta is only five miles from the provincial capital of My Tho. But the camp from which the Americans will launch their long awaited delta campaign can now be supplied only by boats coming up the Mekong estuaries.
The "out there" is a tent city where men of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division are sandbagging themselves into what must be a unique military fortress.
The area, almost a mile square, was filled in by sand and muck dredged from the bottom of the Mekong. It took almost six months and cost untold amounts, plus the world's fourth largest dredge which the Viet Cong blew up three weeks ago. It now sticks up crazily from the river bottom, and another dredge has come up the river to continue the work.
The entire delta, which covers the southern third of South Vietnam, is barely above sea level. When the United States began planning to move into the area, the engineers found there wasn't enough dry ground for the size base camp U.S. forces favor.
Six months ago the big dredge pulled up and started filling in rice paddies miles from anywhere.
The only road, paralleling the river at this point, had long been unusable because of guerrillas those five miles to My Tho. South Vietnamese patrols moved through the area, using small, single-file pontoon bridges alongside the battered, abandoned military bridges left by the French. But when night closed in the land became the domain of the Viet Cong.

Nixon Urges 'Stand' In Red China's Split

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon has urged a strong U.S. stand in Vietnam in face of Red China's internal civil strife.
"The fact that they are divided in Red China, that Red China has this division," Nixon said, "makes it more difficult for them to take a strong position in Vietnam."
Nixon said Communist China's disorder had the appearance of a civil war, or at least the beginnings of one.
"When your enemy is divided," Nixon said, "That's the time to move."

Station Wagon With Casket Involved In Lisbon Mishap

LISBON — Eastbound station wagons driven by Mary Ellen Rice, 32, of Salem R. D. 2, and Harold L. Flynt, 46, of Lisbon R. D. 5, collided Friday.
Flynt, minister to Seventh Day Adventist congregations in Lisbon, Salem, East Liverpool and Wellsville, was en route to Jacksonville, Fla., with a casket containing the body of his father, Guy C. Flynt, who died early yesterday in Salem City Hospital. Flynt's parents had been visiting here and the father became ill Sunday.
The accident occurred at 5:15 p.m. on E. Washington St. near the Vine St. junction when Mrs. Rice pulled from the curb into the path of Flynt's car, police said.
They estimated $500 damage to the right front of his 1967 vehicle and $400 damage to the left side of her 1960 wagon.
Flynt had the car checked before proceeding on the trip South. His mother accompanied him.
Mrs. Rice forfeited a $15 appearance bond last night in mayhem.

Court Says 'No' In Belle's Bid To Leave Country

PITTSBURGH (AP) — One-time financier Earl Belle has been denied permission to leave the country and travel to South America as a business representative for a group of Pittsburgh investors.
Belle's request was denied Friday by Judge Rabe F. Marsh Jr. in U.S. District Court. The Justice Department objected to the petition but did not say why.
Marsh sentenced Belle to prison on multiple fraud charges stemming from the collapse of his financial dealings in 1958. Belle, 34, is on five-year's probation and needs permission to leave the court's jurisdiction.
A second request by Belle to go to Brazil to bring back his retarded son, Clint, 7, for treatment was turned over to the U.S. Probation office here for investigation with instructions to advise the court on its outcome.
Belle had fled to Brazil in 1958 to avoid prosecution and returned in 1963.
During Friday's hearing, Belle said for the first time in court that he was forced to return to the United States by an agent from Interpol, the international police force.
Belle said the agent told him he would never leave Brazil alive unless he signed papers that described his return as "voluntary."

Not A Real Duty

BOSTON — The Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court has ruled that stooping to pet a kitten falls outside the course of employment. A Cambridge business executive claimed workmen's compensation after breaking his arm when he stumbled as he stooped to pet the cat. A lower court awarded the 83-year-old man $1,003 but the higher tribunal reversed the decision.
